about us.

We are a non-profit organization dedicated to supporting the park.

We champion the unique natural, historical, and cultural resources of York River State Park's estuarine environment. We provide labor and materials for vital projects that enhance the interpretive, educational, and outdoor recreation opportunities for park visitors. Through authentic community engagement and advocacy, we advance the park's mission to conserve these resources for future generations.

about the park.

York River State Park conserves a 2,900-acre estuarine environment where freshwater and saltwater meet, providing critical habitat for animal and plant life.

Human habitation of this site goes back thousands of years, including Indigenous, Colonial, and Early American settlements.

Park staff and volunteers are dedicated to conserving these natural and cultural resources.

The park offers numerous outdoor experiences, including hiking, biking, horseback riding, fishing, and water access to the York River and Taskinas Creek, a tributary.
